Environmental Policy

PACIFIC CLEANING considers environmental management to be an integral and important element in the management responsibilities within the company. We are committed to continually improving our EMS and preventing pollution.

PACIFIC CLEANING will comply with national and local environmental laws and regulations.

All employees are responsible for maintaining and protecting the environment. You should therefore consider the impact of your activities on the environment and the local community, including the way in which waste is disposed of, chemicals used and stored and natural resources utilized. Chemicals will be disposed of appropriately, light switches will be turned off after use where appropriate, electrical equipment will be turned off after use and not kept running and only enough water to complete the tasks will be used. Staff should encourage each other to adhere to the relevant environmental requirements and report any breaches to management so that action can be taken as soon as possible.

Pacific Cleaning will recycle as much waste as possible as per local council recycling programs.

Pacific Cleaning will consider the environmental impact of each of our business activities and aim to minimize any adverse effects. This includes purchasing procedures where by environmental criteria such as recyclable, reusable, non toxic and biodegradable will be taken into account.

Performance shall be assessed as part of our periodic audits and review processes. We will aim to continually improve our processes with regard to environmental issues.

All employees will be educated where relevant in environmental issues such that the implementation of the environmental management system will minimize the risk of accidental releases into the environment and reduce the impact of such releases should they occur. There will be ongoing monitoring of the discharge of wastes and emissions which may harm the environment.

Environmental responsibilities include;

- containing all spills if safe to do so immediately using appropriate spill kits, PPE etc.
- nothing to be washed down storm water drains
- in case of environmental contamination, immediately contact a Supervisor onsite.
